Goal: To provide realities, concepts, and approaches that will assist instructors (and soon to be instructors) in enhancing their shooter's performance. It is designed and delivered by experienced female firearms instructors whose intentions are to broaden the knowledge of how a female's physiology plays a role in the shooting process, ergonomic aides/technologies currently available to assist the shooting performance, and communication/teaching styles. Participants will learn and evaluate creative and effective ways of peer coaching, diagnosing and correcting shooting errors, introducing competition into their training as well as proven concentration techniques to improve marksmanship. This is a custom course. Each participant will be surveyed prior to class for their areas of interest which then will be covered in class in addition to the aforementioned areas.

Requisites

- Instructor certification preferred but not mandated
- 150 rounds of pistol ammunition
- Outside the waistband holster
- Valid concealed weapons permit
